PREPARATORY DEPARTMENT.

The design of this department is to prepare for the College, and to give such instruction as may be desired by those wishing to prosecute a partial course. The time that each young lady will be required to continue in this department will depend upon her natural ability, her previous preparation, and her application to her studies.

The studies pursued in this department are Spelling, Reading, Writing, Mental and Written Arithmetic, Geography with Globes, English Grammar, Natural and Elementary History, Illustrated Astronomy, Botany for Beginners, and Composition.

TEXT-BOOKS.

Town's Speller and Definer, McGuffey's Eclectic Readers, Colburn's Mental Arithmetic, Davies' Arithmetic, Smith's Primary and Quarto Geographies, Mitchell's Ancient Geography, Bullion's Analytical and Practical English Grammar, Ruschenberger's Natural History of Quadrupeds, Botany for Beginners, Parker's Exercises in Composition.

COLLEGIATE DEPARTMENT,

The design of this department is to give such instruction as will qualify young ladies for the responsible duties of life. The course of instruction will embrace a period of four years. Candidates for admission into any class of this department, will be examined on the studies embraced in the previous part of the course. Those wishing to pursue a partial course will have permission to do so, when practicable, in connection with some College class.

COURSE OF INSTRUCTION.

ORNAMENTAL BRANCHES.

These, including Music on the Piano and Guitar, Drawing, Painting, Embroidery, Wax Flowers and Fruits, and Pellis Work, are committed to competent and faithful hands, and nothing will be wanting on the part of the Trustees to make this department all that its friends could desire.

REMARKS.

This institution went into operation on the 21st of July, 1851. It was not possible for the Trustees to make arrangements to commence at an earlier date. As the fall session had commenced in the other Seminaries in this region, the number of pupils, at first, was only SEVENTEEN. During the second session, the names of FORTY-ONE pupils were found upon the list. In the course of the third session, FIFTY-FIVE pupils were enrolled; upon the fourth session, SIXTY-FIVE; upon the fifth, SIXTY-NINE; upon the sixth, SEVENTY-ONE; upon the seventh, SEVENTY-THREE; and upon the eighth and last session, EIGHTY.

It will be seen from the statement now made, that there has been a steady increase of the number of pupils from the first to the eighth and last session.

In this connection it may be proper to add, that another large and commodious boarding-house will be immediately erected on the premises, and very near the institution, for the ample accommodation of a much larger number of pupils. This will be completed next session. And in addition to this, fifty more, if desired, can obtain board in families of the first respectability, in sight of the College, and in a quiet and retired portion of the village. The healthfulness and pleasantness of Oxford are unsurpassed by any other town in North Carolina. It is believed, too, that the society of this place will compare favorably with that of any other village in this State. The discipline of this institution will continue to be mild, but firm. Nothing unreasonable will be required. It will be taken for granted that the object of parents and guardians in placing their children and their wards in this Seminary, is to give them an opportunity of acquiring an education; and all the arrangements made by the Trustees and Faculty, will keep that object distinctly in view.

The pupils will attend worship on the Sabbath at such times and places as may be thought best by the teachers. But any parent or guardian may direct, if he please, what church his child or his ward shall attend.

Here it is thought proper to state to parents and guardians, that much inconvenience to the College and loss to the pupils have been sustained by absence in term time. The idea that an absence of a few weeks, at the commencement of the session, will occasion no very serious injury, as the pupil "will bring up her studies—will overtake her class," is one of the worst humbugs of the day. This "bringing up of studies—this overtaking the class," is all a mistake. It cannot be. Were this possible, it would be a lasting disgrace to the institution. What would an intelligent community think of any institution of learning, the progress of whose pupils, if progress it could be called, was such that it did not matter whether its members were visiting at home, or in College at their books? The truth is, an absence of only a few weeks, at any time in the session, is a serious loss. Such absence, in many instances, has had the very worst effect upon the pupils themselves. They have often, to a great extent, lost all relish for their studies, become discouraged, and, as a natural consequence, abandoned entirely the idea of acquiring an education. This is literally true of many ladies and gentlemen of North Carolina. It would be well if the same remark were not applicable to multitudes of persons of other States.

Such individuals will regret the course they pursued in their youth as long as they live. To avoid the results mentioned above, parents and guardians are most respectfully and most earnestly requested not to afford their children and wards the facilities for leaving College in term time, unless such absence, in their judgment, is absolutely necessary.

In the prosecution of the business of the institution, it has not been forgotten that this is a College, and that the classes should be arranged in accordance with that fact. In commencing, however, with pupils differing much in age and attainments, and differing, too, in regard to the course of study they wished to pursue, and the length of time they would continue in the institution, the Faculty have not been able to complete the organization of the classes so effectually as they could have desired.

At the opening of the next session, after learning distinctly the wishes of parents and guardians upon the subject, it is proposed to form a regular College class, or classes, into which such can be admitted as may be found, on examination, prepared to enter; and it is also proposed to begin, forthwith, to fit such for College as are not now prepared to enter a College class, but may wish to complete a full course of study.

But besides those who may wish to go on through a full College course, there are others, it is recollected, who wish to continue in the institution only a limited period. Arrangements will be made to meet the wishes of such pupils. It will frequently happen that they can enjoy the privilege of prosecuting the studies of their choice in connection with a College class.

The Catalogue now published contains the names of pupils during the fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth sessions. The number embraced in each session has already been mentioned. The names of the pupils in attendance during the first three sessions were published in the first Catalogue. The number of pupils embraced in this Catalogue is one hundred and sixty-two. To this add twenty-three, the number in the first Catalogue not mentioned in this, and it will be seen that one hundred and eighty-five pupils have been members of this institution.

CONCLUDING REMARKS.

The regulations of this College, similar to those of other High Schools and Colleges, may all be expressed in a few words, and must be punctually observed.

The pupils are required to observe the rules of strict morality and politeness, and to have a constant regard to neatness and cleanliness.

They must wear the prescribed uniform, and be diligent in the pursuit of their studies.

They must also be present at the regular hours of study and recitation, attend divine worship on the Sabbath, and be present at all the examinations.

The pupils are not allowed to interrupt, by any means, the studies of others, or attend parties during the progress of the term. They must not leave the premises without permission of the President, or open accounts, or contract debts of any kind, without the special permission of their parents or guardians.

The young ladies of this Seminary are not allowed to correspond with, or receive the visits or attentions of, young gentlemen. They will not be permitted to wear a profusion of jewelry, or to spend nights or the Sabbath abroad.

At the close of the Spring session, a public address may be expected, suited to the occasion.

All letters for the young ladies should be directed to the care of the President.
